U of C toys with tech crackdown

► Warnings to be issued first to those 'distracting' peers using laptops and cellphones in class ► Students question policy

University of Calgary tech junkies beware, a new policy could be coming to crack down on surfing, gaming and texting in class.

The institution's academic program committee is currently investigating technology use in classrooms and could recommend action be taken against those persistently distracting others.

This comes following a wave of complaints related to computers and cellphones being used in classrooms from students and faculty alike.

"Really the central issue is the disruption part," said Erin Gibbs Van Brunschot, head of the committee. "People have certain images on screen or are doing things not related to class work

Decision date

► Policy No decision on a technology policy at the University of Calgary will be made until the fall semester at the earliest.

► Rules New rules could be added to the university's non-academic misconduct policy, said Erin Gibbs Van Brunschot.

► Respondents In all, 100 faculty members have responded to a survey regarding technology use in class. Students were also consulted but it was unclear how many have responded.

and it's disrupting people behind them."

Certain instructors at the university already request students to leave their gadgets in their bag, said second-year urban studies student Steven Petersen, who was unsure whether a formal policy was necessary.

"For the most part, as long as the students are being respectful of their profs I think it works fairly well," he said.

Gibbs Van Brunschot said a formal policy could provide instructors with better direction on issues regarding technology.

Third-year law student Arash Rai believes using her computer in class is a personal choice, noting she sometimes works on assignments in one class for another to keep up with heavy demand.

"If someone is just typing, what's the difference between them typing notes or typing on Facebook?" she said. "If we didn't have computers we don't know how our classes would function because we are so attached to them ... I feel like it's a dumb policy, personally."

New safety rules for fair rides

A wreck that injured 10 people last year at the Calgary Stampede has resulted in six new safety regulations for rides by North American Midway Entertainment (NAME), the company who provides rides to exhibitions in Canada and the United States, according to reports.

The new rules include: comprehensive non-destructive testing using X-rays on all rides, two separate inspections be conducted yearly, the inspection and approval of repairs by the manufacturer and a third-party, a review of findings by independent structural engineers, a comprehensive inspection of new rides and more frequent inspections during the 2011 fair season. ● METRO

Crowchild submerged

Cars heading northbound on Crowchild Trail yesterday were re-routed after a water main break flooded all four lanes. Around 1 p.m., police were called to the section of Crowchild Trail between 33 Avenue and 26 Avenue, which was submerged after a 16-inch water main broke. Traffic was unable to travel on Crowchild Trail between Flanders Avenue and 17 Avenue. One lane was eventually opened around 3 p.m. after the line was shut off and the water began to recede. ● METRO

It's a dirty job but somebody's got to do it.

The city is encouraging pet owners in Calgary to be responsible and clean up after their dogs because the consequences are not only unsightly, they're unhealthy, according to city parks spokesperson Sid Andrews.

Andrews said the ecological impact of leaving puppy poop behind is significant.

"The real point is, we're habituating some wild animals in ways we don't want to when we leave dog poop behind," he said. "Magpies or coyotes use it as a source of food."

Peace officer with the City of Calgary David Messenger said with the amount of signage posted, there are no excuses.

"99.9 per cent of people are responsible pet owners, it's just sometimes if you haven't got an eye on your dog, you don't see it happening but that's when you should be keeping an eye on your dog."

Laura Hardie said she makes a conscious effort to clean up after her dog Chublet because she believes if you abuse it, you'll lose it.

Majority needed to quell separatism: PM

- ▶ A weak government fuels Quebec sovereigntists, Harper pitches in B.C.
- ▶ Michael Ignatieff focuses on Liberals' health-care reform plan

Stephen Harper is making another pitch for a Conservative majority government, adding the resurgence of Quebec sovereigntists to the growing list of reasons he needs unfettered power in Ottawa.

Now is not the time for a weak minority, which is precisely what the forces of separation in Quebec are hoping for, Harper told a rally yesterday in Richmond, B.C.

The issue arose anew Saturday after Parti Québécois Leader Pauline Marois, who is ahead in provincial polls, won a resounding 93.1 per cent confidence vote from the normally fractious party.

Harper spent most of the weekend in British Columbia, a province where the Tories have a chance to pick up enough seats to form the first Tory majority since Brian Mulroney nearly 20 years ago.

Coincidentally, Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff found himself on the same turf yesterday, attempting to contrast his position on health care with that of the government.

Within 60 days of a Liberal government taking power, Ignatieff said, he'd convene a meeting of the provinces and territories to begin hammering out a new health-care accord to replace the current agreement, which expires in 2014.

The Liberals are hoping health care proves to be the government's Achilles heel. The party is currently airing the most negative ads of its campaign, trying to depict Harper as the leader most likely to preside over the demise of medicare.

Harper's plan yesterday was to court immigrant voters by renewing his pledge to crack down on human smuggling, but was again called on to defend another Tory candidate eruption.

Wally Daudrich, a Tory candidate in northern Manitoba, had until recently a comment on his Facebook page calling Barack Obama the worst and least honest U.S. president.

Manitoba floods largest on record

About half of Manitoba is impacted by overland flooding and the waters are still rising, officials in that province said.

While the current flooding is not as devastating as 1997's Flood of the Century, it's now the largest on record.

Usually, the biggest story in any given flood year is the Red River, but this spring it's the Assiniboine.

The Red's largest tributary is experiencing water flows not seen in 35 years. That's when it recorded its worst flood, said Steve Topping, Manitoba Water Stewardship's executive director.

And should the Assiniboine crest at the same time as the Red, it could impact several properties inside the city of Winnipeg.

Jet price includes engines, feds say

Defence officials have shot down reports that Canada would be responsible for supplying the engines needed for the F-35 fighters.

Documents obtained from the Defence department saying the F-35 engines "are provided as gov't-furnished equipment" prompted questions whether the cost of the engines were included in the $9 billion price tag to buy 65 of the stealth fighters.

But the Conservatives and Defence officials yesterday insisted the price made public all along includes everything needed to operate the aircraft — even the engines.

"The $9 billion overall acquisition cost includes 65 aircraft with engines installed," the Defence department said in a statement.

Does it work on polls, too?

When the Liberal jet made a false start this weekend at an airport in Edmonton, a little of Michael Ignatieff's gravity-defying mojo might have saved the day.

Stuck on the tarmac, one reporter in the back began chanting the new unofficial Liberal slogan the leader coined in that day's campaign speech: Rise up. Rise up. Rise up.

Everyone on the plane soon joined in the chorus, urging the aircraft skyward — and it worked.

► Emergency personnel work around a Lowe's Home Improvement store after it was hit by a tornado in Sanford, N.C., Saturday.

Deadly tornadoes hit U.S.

► At least 45 dead after 62 twisters slam six states ► Worst storm since 1984

A devastating storm system spawned dozens of tornadoes as it barrelled from Oklahoma to North Carolina, decimating communities in six states and leaving at least 45 people dead in its wake.

Emergency crews searched for victims yesterday in hard-hit swaths of North Carolina, where 62 tornadoes were reported the night before from the worst spring storm in two decades to hit the state. Eleven people were confirmed dead in Bertie County, Zee Lamb, a county manager, said.

Another four were confirmed dead in southeastern Bladen County, bringing the state's death toll to at least 21.

Daybreak brought news of a horrific death toll in Bertie County, about 210 kilometres east of Raleigh. The tornado moved through about 7 p.m. Saturday, sweeping homes from their foundations, demolishing others, and flipping cars on tiny rural roads between Askewville and Colerain, Lamb said.

At least three of those who died were from the same family, he said.

One of the volunteers who scoured the rubble was an Iraq war veteran who told Lamb he was stunned by what he saw.

"He did two tours of duty in Iraq and the scene was worse than he ever saw in Iraq — that's pretty devastating," Lamb said.

"There were several cases of houses being totally demolished except for one room, and that's where the people were," he said. "They survived."

Scenes of destruction across the South looked eerily similar in many areas. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Why U.S. shoppers save more

▶ Canadians wanting low prices could take a page from America's culture of bargain-hunting

With a loonie worth more than a U.S. dollar, bargains abound for Canadian shoppers who hit the stores south of the border.

The reasons for the price difference defy easy explanation. But some suggest an unwillingness of Canadians to spend the same time as Americans to hunt for a bargain may contribute to the gap.

"Shopping seems to be a very big part of what goes on in the U.S. People go down to Florida, to Georgia, to the southern U.S.

and one of the activities that you do there are tours going to outlet malls," says David Soberman, a marketing professor at the University of Toronto. "If you're wondering why prices are lower, it might be part of the explanation."

Soberman suggests that if Canadians want bargains, they must do their research and "patronize the store that has the lowest price."

Michael Mulvey, marketing professor at the University of Ottawa, says the larger middle class in Canada may also play a role in the price gap.

"When you have a larger number of people that are struggling, it does put pressures on to bring prices down," he said.

U.A.E. pushes for more smartphone control

Tighter restrictions on RIM's BlackBerry devices proposed by the United Arab Emirates would likely apply to other smartphones, too, the company says.

The U.A.E.'s telecommunications regulator wants to limit access to the BlackBerry Enterprise Server system, which provides the most secure form of communication. It is used by many firms and government agencies to keep data safe.

Under the U.A.E.'s new rules, only organizations with 20 or more BlackBerry accounts would be allowed to use the BES system. Others would have to rely on a less-secure system that is easier for authorities to monitor. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LIBRARIES FEEL THE PRESSURE

There's a woman who sits with a boy each Wednesday night.

He reads a book to her. She listens. She helps him when he stumbles. I hear every word because space here is tight. This is the Thornhill Public Library. Only Bowness is tinier.

There is one small table and about eight small chairs in the reading area.

It's busy. Adult students of varied nationalities read their Bow Valley College materials. A man in a wheelchair navigates the tight space.

I'm from out-of-community, waiting for my son who is at the city pool next door.

I feel guilty. I'm taking a chair. Yet, across town, the Signal Hill Library received a $5.4-million renovation this year. Another new library opens in Saddle Towne, in the far northeast, this fall.

The pressure on an outward growing city also puts pressure on our library system.

Library director Gerry Meek says there's demand for libraries in all areas of the city. "All our libraries are busy," he says, and he is concerned the southeast is poorly served.

I don't have answers; other than what I see at Thornhill needs remedy. Meeks points out Thornhill is in a city building with other services: A city-run daycare, neighbourhood and community services, a parolee office. There's no room for expansion.

The city gives about $38 per citizen to the CPL each year. The balance comes from overdue fines and program fees, some provincial grants. This week, city council is considering the cost of building on the fringes of the city. Because people want services, like the library that will be in the new Genesis centre in the northeast.

There's no social planning: Poorer neighbourhoods don't get library priority. Consider Thornhill (family income $58,000; 20 per cent low income) versus Signal Hill ($95,000 family income; 35 per cent university grads). To be fair, Forest Lawn received a renovation, as did inner city Louise Riley.

Libraries are our cultural centre — accessible to all. If it comes to this (Calatrava Bridge?) or that, the libraries are the "that."

Federal money? Here at Thornhill in the federal riding of Centre-North, most arenas got the renos. More federal money went to four shiny arenas at COP (and I like hockey arenas!). Our mayor says he is disappointed that federal strategy bypasses city needs. Me, too.

On a sleet-driven Wednesday night, the library shows so much heart and hustle — to use a hockey term.

Let's get another book, the volunteer says to the boy. And they do, and leave.

Worth mentioning

LONDON. Britain's government has begun the process of reviewing the ancient, discriminatory rules of royal succession, so if Prince William and Kate Middleton's first child is a girl she would eventually become queen.

The current rule that puts boys ahead of their sisters "would strike most people as a little old-fashioned," Deputy Prime Minister Nick Clegg said Saturday.

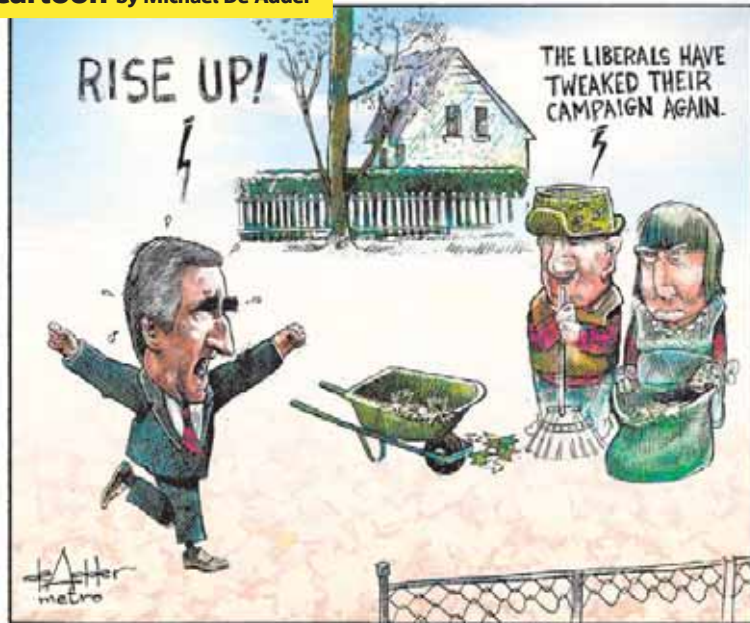

The Cabinet Office said the government accepts that some aspects of the succession rule "could be discriminatory." It said the government has started discussions with British Commonwealth nations that would be directly affected by any change because they recognize the British monarch as their head of state, but declined to release details of those talks.

William is second in line to the throne after his father, Prince Charles, who is Queen Elizabeth II's first-born child.

Charles' sister, Anne, is lower in the line of succession than her younger brothers Andrew and Edward.

Don't stop to smell this flower

Spring is in the air, and that means an unpleasant smell for one greenhouse at Ohio State University.

A 2.4-metre-tall rainforest plant that's known as a "corpse flower" because it smells like rotting flesh is getting ready to bloom.

The Columbus Dispatch reports greenhouse co-ordinator Joan Leonard has been growing the flowers since 2001, and this would be the first of five to bloom.

Leonard says smelling the Amorphophallus titanium for the first time will be the culmination of a decade of work. But it will be a quick experience because the flower withers after a day or two.

She expects the bloom to open in May, revealing its umbrella-sized "petals." When that happens, the university will have visiting hours to give people a peek at the rare plant.

Will and Kate get a TV movie

► Hollywood is looking to cash in on the Royal Wedding with a raft of made-for-TV movies ► The resemblance of the on-screen Kate and William to the real-life version is questionable, as are the set locations

NED

METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

While they prepare for their walk down the aisle April 29, Prince William and Kate Middleton can rest assured that their romance has earned the Lifetime Television seal of approval, as the U.S. cable channel will be debuting William & Kate, a made-for-TV movie about the royal couple's courtship, tonight, 11 days before they tie the knot.

William & Kate chronicles the early days of the couple's long courtship, including their first meetings at the University of St. Andrews and later coping with the intense media scrutiny that comes with dating a member of the royal family. "I love the you no one gets to see but me," the on-screen version of Middleton gushes to her royal beau.

► Camilla Luddington, right, and Nico Evers-Swindell play the title characters in the Lifetime TV movie William & Kate.

Finding actors who look anything like the real-life happy couple was apparently too much of a challenge, as stars Camilla Luddington and Nico Evers-Swindell's similarities to Kate Middleton and Prince William end at their height difference and hair colour — though even here, Evers-Swindell has a bit too much going on, resembling more a ginger version of Twilight star

Robert Pattinson than the thinning-haired second-in-line to the British throne.

The actors aren't the only ones straining to pass themselves off as their British counterparts: The Lifetime movie was filmed entirely in Los Angeles. Scenes at St. Andrews were actually shot on UCLA's sunny Westwood, Calif., campus, as the university's grounds were some of the few places in the area that looked "old" enough to pass for the 600-year-old school.

Resemblance issues aside, Luddington and Evers-Swindell certainly aren't short on enthusiasm. "Lifetime viewers are going to get a great love story," Luddington says of the movie. "If you're romantic at heart, you're going to love it."

Lifetime is also debuting a six-part documentary, Royal Wedding of a Lifetime, prior to the big nuptials at Westminster Abbey.

Another U.S. cable network, the Hallmark Channel, is also getting in on royal action, with their own film about the couple, William & Kate: a Love Story, that won't debut until August. Perhaps the longer lead time will allow them to find actors with more of a resemblance to the real William and Kate.

Not first royal TV movie

Prince William is the latest Royal to get the made-for-TV treatment, but he's certainly not the first. In fact, his parents' wedding was chronicled in not one but two films — and one even spawned a not-too-pleasant sequel.

The Royal Romance of Charles and Diana (1982)

Starring Christopher Baines as Prince Charles and Catherine Oxenberg, a cousin of the real Charles, as Diana Spencer, the film was probably most notable for featuring Olivia de Havilland as the Queen Mother.

Charles and Diana:

A Royal Love Story (1982)

The second film rushed on to TV screens in the year following Charles and Diana's nuptials. This American-made version starred David Robb as Charles and Caroline Bliss as Diana. Sir Christopher Lee stepped in as Prince Philip.

Charles and Diana:

Unhappily Ever After (1992)

Despite her real-life bloodline to the royal family, Oxenberg reprised her role as Princess Diana for this "sequel" to The Royal Romance of Charles and Diana, chronicling in pulpy soap opera detail the dissolution of Charles and Diana's marriage.

Trump delays Apprentice decision

Donald Trump

Donald Trump says he has put off agreeing to an extension of his Celebrity Apprentice reality show while he weighs a presidential bid.

The real estate mogul and potential Republican contender says he told NBC on Friday he could not commit to a three-year contract extension for the series until he decides whether he's running.

Trump spoke at an event at his Mar-a-Lago estate on Palm Beach. He offered familiar messages questioning U.S. President Barack Obama's birthplace.

He also said the U.S. should be entitled to Iraqi oil and praised the ultra-conservative tea party.

Trump says he's encouraged by polls showing him with a strong following and says he'll make an announcement on his campaign plans before June.

METRO WORLD NEWS NEW YORK

In transferring these epic works from the page to the screen here, have you had to make many changes?

Well, of course, I didn't actually do it. So the challenges here were largely those faced by the show runners and the screenwriters, David Benioff and D.B. Weiss.

But they have done quite a faithful adaptation, I think. There are differences certainly. They've added a few new scenes. They've cut things, scenes here and there and certainly lines.

In any sort of television or film adaptation, you don't have the space that you have in prose. But for the most part ... it is my story and it's the same characters and the same principle major events.

I think my fans are going to be very happy with how faithful it is. Most of the changes I've seen are clearly been made just to accommodate the budget, accommodate the limits of running time.

I keep reading all over the place about how you started writing these books because they were un-filmable, and you wanted to go to amazing places like this. Well, now, it's been filmed. Are you kind still pinching yourself?

I am, actually. Sometimes I think I've fallen through a rabbit hole and I'm in Wonderland here. It's amazing not only that they could film, but, of course, the amount of attention that they're getting. And, you know, the cast that we've assembled, the global thing, it all has me pinching myself.

Could you lay out for us how big of a participant you were in putting this on?

I'm going to be writing one episode per season if

Sundays

Game of Thrones airs Sunday nights on HBO Canada.

the show goes forward.

There's part of me that would like to write more than one episode per season, but I have to finish the books and the books, of course, are enormous and they take a lot of time.

I've been working on this last one for more than five years and I'm only now, you know, at the end of that.

And then there's two more beyond that.

So Dance With Dragons will come out on July 12th, but I've got to go pretty quickly and start the next book.

Miley's set for 'happy' travels

► After discord, Miley Cyrus says her family is in a good place ► Singer preparing for international tour

Miley Cyrus says she feels more at ease heading out on an international tour now that things are fine on the home front.

Earlier this year, her parents, Billy Ray and Tish Cyrus, were getting a divorce, and her father was critical of his daughter's behaviour. But the Cyruses recently called off their divorces and the family is spending time together.

"I think it's good, especially when you go on the road. You have to make sure everyone is happy before you start travelling. My family is good. They are stoked for the tour. As long as I'm happy they are happy," Cyrus said in an interview on Thursday.

The former Hannah Montana star is leaving for South America and Australia on April 27 for her Gypsy Heart Tour. It will be the first time Cyrus, whose most recent album is titled Can't Be Tamed, has gone to South America, and she's excited — even though she won't be able to communicate with her fans in their language.

"I speak zero Spanish. I actually failed Spanish so I will have someone with me making sure I can get through my way," she said.

She recently released one of the album's songs, Every Rose Has Its Thorn, in Australia, and said she's excited to sing the Poison cover (which featured Bret Michaels) there live.

But she won't be releasing that song in the United States, and right now, she has no plans to tour in her native country either.

"I just think right now America has gotten to a place where I don't know if they want me to tour or not. Right now I just want to go to the places where I am getting the most love and Australia and South America have done that for me," she said.

"Kind of going to the places where I get the most love. Don't want to go anywhere where I don't feel completely comfortable with it." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Recalling Nirvana

► Dave Grohl ready to embrace his Nirvana days once again ► New Foo Fighters album features contributions from key members of Grohl's past

Try as he might, it's been near impossible for Dave Grohl to convince some critics and music fans that his legacy as a songwriter is worth more than his years drumming for the seminal band Nirvana.

Never mind that it's been 17 long years since the death of grunge icon Kurt Cobain, and that Grohl has penned hit after hit.

From the Foo Fighters first major single This Is a Call to alternative radio staples Best of You, All My Life, Monkey Wrench, My Hero and Everlong, few other bands have been as commercially popular and prolific.

In fact, the Foo Fighters have grown so big that Grohl jokes he's now considered just about as uncool as it gets in the rock universe, at least among cynical hipster types.

"You meet kids in younger underground rock bands and I'm like Bon Jovi to those people," Grohl, 42, laughed during an interview this week in Toronto.

So it's somewhat surprising that Grohl has decided to unabashedly reflect on his Nirvana days again, both on the new Foo Fighters album Wasting Light and in the band's documentary Back And Forth.

For years, Grohl has been waiting for the right time to work with some of his old Nirvana collaborators again, but until now had been too sensitive about the idea.

"It seemed there had to be some distance between (Nirvana and the Foo Fighters) and for years I've really had to balance that to give Nirvana the respect it deserves. I wouldn't be here if it weren't for Nirvana," Grohl said.

Wasting Light was recorded with producer Butch Vig, who worked on the classic Nevermind, and former Nirvana bass player Krist Novoselic is seen in the documentary playing on the track I Should Have Known. At the tail end of the movie, Vig hypothesizes that the song is about the Nirvana days and Cobain, which Grohl doesn't deny.

► Dave Grohl of The Foo Fighters

When I first started writing that song it was about someone else that I was involved with and at the end of the day I said to myself, I should have known that this was going to happen," Grohl explains in the movie.

This week, Grohl said enough time has passed that he can acknowledge his Nirvana history and embrace it.

"You just have to kind of shut off that switch that keeps you concerned about what other people think," he said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nic Cage booked in New Orleans

Actor taken into custody after alleged drunken row with wife

Nicolas Cage was arrested in New Orleans over the weekend on charges of domestic violence and disturbing the peace, according to TMZ.

Sources say a "very drunk" Cage and his wife, Alice Kim, were arguing loudly outside, prompting a taxi driver to alert the police. When they arrived, Cage reportedly taunted the cops with, "Why don't you just arrest me?" Eventually, the officers obliged.

Kim is reportedly denying any domestic violence occurred and is not planning to press charges.

Does this movie look good or bad and why?

Smurfs: I think the movie looks colourful. But the lines, are they supposed to be funny?

Rio: It looks more good than bad. Kids really like Pedro, the red bird. Kids at my school are already copying his phrases.

The Zookeeper: It looks better than The Smurfs, but I wouldn't give it a solid thumbs up.

Winnie the Pooh: It looks funny. Good job Disney!

Kung Fu Panda 2: Awesome, think I want to see it. This is a great movie for your kids.

Cars 2: Looks pretty good, I like it.

Do you think kids will want to see this? Why?

Yes, but not because it looks good. It is because it is their parents' beloved characters and in 3-D!

The bird versus monkey war makes kids fans in seconds.

Yes. Little kids love talking animals. Movie companies love to make movies about kids' favourite subjects.

Yes, it seems better than I thought, but kids might look at it and say, "I don't want to watch another Winnie the Pooh movie."

Of course! Who wouldn't want to see a talking panda doing Kung Fu with Jack Black's voice?

Kids loved the movie Cars in 2006. What makes you think they wouldn't like this one?

What do you hope happens to the main characters?

I hope they go to Central Park.

I hope Rio gets a chance to swim in the ocean.

I hope the monkeys make the zookeeper eat bananas and I hope he can ride on an elephant.

I hope Owl stops being so bossy.

I hope the characters are the same as in the first one.

I just hope Sally comes back. In the trailer it doesn't look like she does.

What are the chances you'll see it in the theatre?

I'd say about 27 per cent. It doesn't sound as funny as its supposed to look.

Probably a good 65 per cent. It is probably going to win awards.

A 41 per cent chance. I don't think it looks quite funny enough.

Maybe a 99 per cent. It looks pretty good!

Probably 100 per cent. It looks cool!

100 per cent. My Dad has figured it. Kids are gonna love this. It is a 10-year-old boy's dream.

The perfect treat for Passover

► Baked goods for the Jewish holiday must be made without flour ► This Honey Coconut Cake employs alternatives

To be suitable for Passover, baked goods must be made without flour. This cake replaces it with a blend of matzo meal and ground nuts that then are flavoured with honey, coconut, orange zest and spices. The result is a satisfyingly syrupy-sticky cake that is wonderfully delicious.

Preparation:

1 Heat the oven to 150 C (300 F). Coat an 20-cm (8-inch) springform pan with cooking spray, then line the bottom with parchment paper.

2 In the bowl of a food processor, pulse together the almonds, coconut and matzo until the mixture is reduced to coarse crumbs.

3 In the bowl of a stand mixer, combine the eggs, honey, sugar and salt. Beat with the whisk attachment on high until very thick, about 7 to 8 minutes. Stir in the zest, cinnamon and cardamom. Fold the coconut and almond mixture into the eggs in 2 batches. Pour the mixture into the prepared pan. Bake until a toothpick inserted at the centre comes out with a few moist crumbs, 35 to 40 minutes.

4 While the cake bakes, make the syrup. In a small saucepan over medium-high, combine the water, sugar, honey, orange juice and cardamom. Bring to a boil and cook, stirring, until the sugar is dissolved. Set aside.

5 When the cake is finished baking, use a skewer to poke holes across the surface of the cake. Pour 160 ml (2/3 cup) of syrup over the cake. Allow to cool.

6 To serve, run knife along the outside of pan and remove sides of the pan. Transfer to serving platter and remove bottom of the pan. Peel off the parchment paper if it doesn't come off. Top with toasted coconut and serve with extra syrup.

Oh VHS tapes; those were the days. If the ones you own are too damaged to view and hence donate or give away, recycling is an option. The Recycling Council of BC has a great website (rcbc.bc.ca) with an easy-to-use search engine, or what they call the RCBC Recyclepedia. All you have to do is select the type of material you want to recycle, "electronic," then the item, "VHS tapes," and select the city you live in. It's that simple.

The bad news from the Recycling Council of BC is that "VHS and audio cassette tapes are difficult to recycle because the ribbon of tape cannot be

I won't keep you in suspense; the results for your area are: London Drugs — Green Deal Recycling Program at greendeal.ca or Pacific Mobile Depots at pacificmobiledepots.com.

Given RCBC's cautionary note, I'd suggest call-

Eco-friendly wedding

► When it comes to your wedding look to the backyard

Depending on your petal of choice, wedding flowers can drastically weigh down your budget — especially if they're not in season or grown locally.

Rather than paying for exports, why not follow in the footsteps of Kate Middleton (who will have an arrangement full of myrtle and other petals) and walk down the aisle with a gorgeous bouquet comprised of flowers and herbs? Take a peak at your own garden or head to your local florist and don't be afraid to ask for seasonal petals.

As for herbs, lavender, basil, mint and thyme are easily found at the grocery store, and will not only look beautiful in a mixed bouquet but smell fragrant too.

Turning internships into job opportunities

STUDENT
VOICECARLA KAVINTA

I recently got hired as an intern at KBS+P, a marketing and advertising firm in downtown Toronto. Although I have learned a great deal from sitting in on meetings and completing project tasks, the most valuable and practical skills I have learned were from having one-on-one meetings with executives in the company.

What shocked me most was that these senior people approached me to share their knowledge of the industry, as well as provide their advice on career goals and how to succeed in the advertising business.

They have continually followed up with practical advice and have generously shared an ample amount of reading material to explore the industry further.

Most importantly, they have made a genuine commitment to educating their interns, knowing that we could potentially be the future of the company.

Their sincere interest in my career development has inspired me to work for the firm and has pushed me to work hard for the company.

Where Carla is now

I am currently finishing my last year in the commerce program at the University of Toronto. I was accepted to a global internship program for the summer and hope to return to KBS+P in the fall.

Key take-aways from Carla's school-to-work transition

- Take on internships while you're still in school to gain work experience.
- Ask senior executives for their career advice — they've been where you are and know what it takes to succeed.

• Use your new connections to help you land a job after graduation. If you go above and beyond during your internship, they're more likely to hire you after graduation.

Learning science from a distance

► Technology allows distance learners to perform labs at home, such as virtually dissecting a frog online

One of the questions that parents and students often have about distance education high school courses is concerning the practical application of knowledge, such as lab work, are fulfilled. This is especially true for those considering a science course like biology or chemistry.

With today's technology, distance education courses have evolved from reading black and white text about labs in a text book to participating in on-line interactive activities.

"As studying at a distance becomes readily available to anyone looking to earn high school credits or to upgrade skills on their own time, it is vital that the student gets the full learning experience," says Sarah Irwin, managing director of the Independent Learning Centre (ILC.org). "For example, learning Grade 9 science requires the dissection of a frog. Our interactive tools allow students to virtually perform a full dissection online, in the comfort of their home, library or wherever they choose to study."

► Online courses now include digital components.

Reaching far beyond textbooks, modern instructional designers include various methodologies to engage students and support learning.

A learner studying independently can now expect courses to include digital components such as videos and news clips, online discussion forums and interactive tutorials, creating a learning experience that entertains and engages while educating, earning credentials and meeting the expectations of the curriculum.

Canucks on verge of sweep in Chicago

► Champs on the ropes after failing to cash in on power plays

Mikael Samuelsson scored the go-ahead goal in the third period, Roberto Luongo made 30 saves and the Vancouver Canucks moved within a victory of sweeping defending Stanley Cup champion Chicago, beating the Blackhawks 3-2 last night.

The Canucks, with the best record in the NHL during the regular season, can finish off the first-round series tomorrow night at the United Center.

Christian Ehrhoff and Daniel Sedin also scored for the Canucks, eliminated by the Blackhawks in the first round the previous two seasons.
